Topics Discussed: In the meeting, we discussed the division of technologies between team members. For the frontend development, one person will focus on the design and user interface while two others will focus on the actual coding and functionality. This allows for a balance between aesthetics and functionality. Meanwhile, for the backend development, three people can be assigned to work on the server-side logic, database management, and API integrations. By dividing the tasks this way, the workload is distributed fairly, and each team member can focus on their respective strengths. Additionally, communication and collaboration between the teams are crucial to ensure that both frontend and backend components are integrated smoothly.

Decisions Made: Some of the decisions that we made are that Redi Ceni, Daniel Abdiaj and Fjoralb Tashi will work on the frontend for our project while Enris Kumi, Faik Koprenca and Ervin Shyti will work on the backend part.

Tasks Assigned: Everyone should open a github if they don't already have it and each team member should start uploading in the project github the starter files for their respective part.
